

TRIG Engineering Ltd celebrates 10 years as part of ENSINGER Ltd

TRIG Engineering Ltd, a market leading precision engineering company with almost 40 years experience in the plastics industry, celebrates its 10 year anniversary since becoming part of the ENSINGER group this week.

TRIG Engineering itself was established in May 1965. Turnover for the first year of trading was £8,537, and from here the company has gone from strength to strength. By the time of the acquisition by ENSINGER Ltd, turnover was at £1.6 million, with 63 employees.

Since the purchase by ENSINGER Ltd on 30th September 1994, the company has undergone many changes, including a move to a purpose built 30,000sq ft facility in Bridgwater, where it meets the precision plastics needs and has preferred supplier status for some of the biggest names in the aerospace, electronics, semi-conductor, chemical, medical, mining and marine industries.

A celebratory day has been organised for all TRIG employees in recognition of the success the company has achieved in the last ten years, which includes trebling turnover, and increasing its staff by a third. The company also boasts certifications including, Investors in People and ISO 9001:2000, showing its commitment for both its staff and customers for the future.

Managing Director John Speirs said: "I am delighted to announce this important milestone in the unity between ENSINGER and Trig Engineering. The successes we have achieved over the past 10 years are due to the hard work and dedication of the whole workforce at the company. I am proud to say that despite change and progression we still have close links with Trig's heritage, with TRIG's founder Percy Trigoll attending our celebratory day. This day is not only in recognition of our achievements so far but also to look to the prosperous future the company faces."
